Creating a World Worth Living

Creating a World Worth Living

- Avani Dineshan Kadoor N3

Life as we know it is one of the biggest blessings we have. The world we live in is a whole mix of opportunities and we tend to be adventurous to know the world. But at times we tend to get attached to the materialistic aspects in the world which leads us astray. Humans being a social animal yet have prioritised these materialistic goods over their fellow human beings.

In this technology driven fast world everyone tends to forget how to appreciate what makes us human. We forget to just stop and take a huge breath and look around and appreciate everything else other than materialistic things that the world offers us. The race to reach to some stage in life goes on like a cycle in our lives. From birth to school then to college and to a job and so on. In the race for independence of an individual we forget we are a dependent species and we need more than just money-oriented things. We lack compassion and empathy to our fellow beings. We become selfish with least moral values accustomed to only a small circle of loved ones. For instance a road accident takes place and at the least no one goes to help the victim rather they all just ignore it so as to keep themselves safe. Humans are only human by physical form mentally and emotionally humans have been lost.

In Japan one of the largest and most developed economies in the world people have a very fast life. They tend to develop mental sickness due to this fast paced life. And as a break they have tea that they drink in the evening which is taken sip by sip slowly and slows them down. And in that half an hour they give rest to themselves.

Similarly in that way all of us should take a break just like their tea break in between and calm ourselves down from the race and focus on the other things that makes us human.

As one sip leads to another we can look into the other aspects of happiness compassion care and empathy towards our family friends and fellow beings. Maybe ponder about the last time we helped someone or made someone smile or went on a trip or cried or laughed out so loudly with tears in our eyes and a panging pain in our stomach. Rather than only working on the aspect that will only help us let's work on helping others too. Maybe with time sip by sip we make our lives less dependent on receiving money-grubbing things to the satisfaction of the mind and the soul from giving something to others and the world around to the surroundings and the environment.

Mahatma Gandhi once said "If we could change ourselves the tendencies in the world would also change. As a man changes his own nature so does the attitude of the world change towards him.

We need not wait to see what others do." And on this note we learn that if we take a break from the race and look at our surroundings around us and take a step to bring in better for others to exist cordially together then it passes on and hence will make the world a better place for each one of us.

POSTER MAKING COMPETITION

AUTOMATIC SANITIZER MACHINE

15/04/2020

An automatic hand sanitizer dispensing machine is automated, non contact, alcohol based hand sanitizer dispenser, which finds it's use in hospitals, work places, offices, schools and much more. Alcohol is basically a solvent, and also a very good disinfectant when compared to liquid soap or solid soap, also it does not need water to wash off since it is volatile and vaporizes instantly after application to hands. It is also proven that a concentration of >70% alcohol can kill Corona virus in hands. Here, an ultrasonic sensor senses the hand placed near it, the Arduino uno is used as a microcontroller, which senses the distance and the result is the pump running to pump out the hand sanitizer. We NSS volunteers helped the work of IEDC SNGCE and SAE for this great work. The work lasted for weeks.
